How does it work?

High performance, magnetic energy, is focused into the pipe carrying the fluid as it passes.

Magnetic energy is transmitted into the water

This forces a physical and potential change to occur in the water.

The calcium in the water and other like minerals are prevented from crystallising.

By magnetically locking the water, the surface tension drops and the water becomes softer.

The bore water reactor performance has become well known to the many users, who have experienced the benefits of free energy magnetic conditioning.

The Bore Water Reactor is more powerful than the other units on the market.

The unique negative defusing action on the reactor results in a powerful magnetic effect entering the water where it converts the polarity of the minerals in the water. Instead of improving the taste of hard water, it smashes through the hardness barrier to soften the water.

The Bore water reactor, is out-performing every other similar type of treatment device on the market due to increased power and the defused technology.
